Contents

Ambition and Restraint

- 7 Should We Stay or Should We Go? The United States and the Middle East F. Gregory Gause, III
By any reasonable baseline comparison, the United States is not leaving the Middle East. But its continuing presence should and probably will have more modest goals.
- 25 Towards a More Prudent American Grand Strategy John Glaser, Christopher A. Preble and A. Trevor Thrall
Doing less in foreign policy does not mean isolationism or retreat.
- 43 Is America Prepared for Great-power Competition? Brian D. Blankenship and Benjamin Denison
As the Trump administration signals a return to great-power competition, it has also damaged the United States' ability to prevail.

Commentary

- 65 Is Major War Still Obsolete? Michael Mandelbaum
The period of deep peace ended because Russia, China and Iran adopted policies to overturn the political status quo.
- 72 Noteworthy

A Freer Europe

- 75 Securing Europe's Economic Sovereignty Mark Leonard, Jean Pisani-Ferry, Elina Ribakova, Jeremy Shapiro and Guntram Wolff
To protect European economic independence, the EU needs to better integrate economic policy and geopolitics.
- 99 Decentralising Ukraine: Geopolitical Implications Valentyyna Romanova and Andreas Umland
The ongoing devolution of power to the local level in Ukraine deprives Russia's hybrid warriors of critical entry points and furthers Ukraine's Europeanisation.

On the cover
A US Army C-47 Chinook flies over the village of Oreij, Iraq, in advance of a February 2017 assault on the Islamic State stronghold of Mosul.

Nuclear Stability

- 113 Decisive Response: A New Nuclear Strategy for NATO Hans Binnendijk and David Gompert
NATO still needs nuclear weapons, purely and simply, to deter Russia from using them first.
- 129 Hypersonic Weapons and Strategic Stability Dean Wilkening
If targeted by hypersonic weapons, Russia or China might conclude that its strategic nuclear forces were under attack when they were not.

Review Essays

- 149 Chernobyl: A 'Normal' Accident? Rodric Braithwaite
Wholly engrossing, unsentimental and sympathetic, the television miniseries Chernobyl, by any reasonable yardstick, is a triumph.
- 159 American Nihilist Jonathan Stevenson
Salvatore Scibona's novel The Volunteer joins and transcends the Vietnam War literary canon, placing the war in the context of America's post-9/11 decline.

Book Reviews

- 171 South Asia Teresita C. Schaffer
178 Middle East Ray Takeyh
185 Economy Erik Jones

Letter to the Editor

- 193 The Two-state Quandary Efraim Inbar
The key issue is whether the minimum Israeli security conditions for the establishment of a Palestinian state can be fulfilled.
- 194 In Reply Benjamin L. Shaver and Guy Ziv

Closing Argument

- 197 Moral Compass of Central Europe Jan Zdrálek
Thirty years after the fall of communism, young democracies in Europe are threatened.
